2nd Sunday of Easter or Sunday of Divine Mercy

It's tempting to stay shortsighted when we think about these words of Jesus to his apostles. It's tempting to link our peace with the events of our day. If things are going well, we are at peace. But the moment one of life's trials comes along, we lose our peace. Jesus experienced all of the emotions we experience, both the good and the bad.

2nd Sunday of Easter or Sunday of Divine Mercy

He showed love and tenderness to a woman who washed his feet. He showed disappointment with the Pharisees who flaunted their religiosity. He was especially compassionate toward the crowds that followed him, and he was surprisingly angry with the money changers in the Temple. He applauded people's generosity, and he hated to see anyone suffering. Yet for all of these different emotions, one thing remained constant: Jesus always held on to his peace. That's because the peace that Jesus had was not about things going his way. His peace was about knowing that his Father was always with him and that God would always be faithful to his promises.
