 SAINTLY ADVICE GOSSIP

“ We are like ravens or carrion crows who never bother with any living flesh-but whenever we find a dead dog in a ditch, that's where we fly to stuff ourselves. In the same way, when we see a good man , and hear or see a good thing, then we take little heed. But when once we see an evil deed, then we stop and stare, and all day long we gossip and feed ourselves with the filthy delight of evil conversation and hateful thoughts. ( St Thomas Moore)

A LITTLE THEOLOGY HUMAN DIGNITY

Here in this country we have witness the attack on life in the womb, since the introduction of abortion the rate of abortions have risen by more than 200%, from over 3000 per annum to in excess of 10000 in 2024, Once those who sought to normalise even praise abortion had achieved their end they have turned their gaze on the old, sick and vulnerable once again seeking to portray the taking of life as an act of compassion, what a strange form of care and compassion that leads to death at the start of life and in its most vulnerable condition. It may seem a strange sort of question to ask, but in the light of what we have seen occur in the last 10 year it is not an unreasonable one, what next, since life is disposable who will be next to be deemed fit to have their life taken in the name of compassion?????????

 PRAYING FOR THE DEAD

Friday is the first of November, All Saints day the start of the month when the church recalls in a particular manner all those who have gone before us marked with the sign of the cross. Praying for the souls of our loved ones is a beautiful and important way to show our love and support for them even after they have passed away, the church has always believed that death is not the end, but rather a new beginning into eternal life. Our prayer can help to purify the souls in purgatory. Praying for the souls of our loved ones is a way to grow in our faith, when we pray for the dead we are reminded of our own mortality and the importances of leading a good, holy and fruitful life,
